District Is Still In Grip Of Winter

Winter laid no easy hand on us again just as we were looking for spring, snow flurries, a cold northerly wind and the thermometer dropping below zero has been the prevailing weather for the last week of March. Country roads are nearly as bad as any time during the winter. How long this will last it is hard to say for there does not seem to be any break in sight, but we doubt it there will be much work done on the land before the end of April.

NOTICE

NOTICE is hereby given that all owners and holders of dogs in the Village of Champion, must procure their 1936 dog tags immediately.

Lethbridge Experimental Letter

Feeding Baby Chicks and Growing Stock

Each year at this time we have a large number of requests for information on feeding baby chicks and growing stock, so in this week's letter detailed information will be given on the ration used at the Lethbridge station. In compounding these rations an effort has been made to include as much farm produce as possible and to simplify the ration as much as is consistent with good feeding practice.

It must be kept in mind that all the requirements of a rapidly developing chick's body cannot be met by farm grown grains and some supplements must be added in order that a balanced ration may be obtained. As the best procedure is required by the baby chick in order that they may be well started, purchased ingredients are largely used. In both the chick and growing ration purchased protein and mineral supplements are included and these cannot be omitted without seriously reducing the efficiency of the ration.

The chick ration may appear somewhat elaborate and for anyone raising a small number of chicks the trouble of getting and mixing the many ingredients may be too great. Prepared chick feeds from reliable firms, have proved quite satisfactory in practical use and these may be cheaper to use where

New Organ For Westminster

Instrument To Be Installed In Time For Coronation Of King Edward Westminster Abbey is to have a new organ in time for the coronation of King Edward VIII. It is expected to cost £20,000. An anonymous donor has given £5,000, and it is hoped the balance will be raised without a public appeal. "Most of our present organ is 200 years old," said the dean of Westminster, Dr.
Foxley Norris, "and it has been patched and patched in recent years.
Once or twice it has broken down, and one half of the organ is out of action."Tin cans were first made by tin-smiths, who turned them out by hand at the rate of 60 a day.Icebergs have been known to take

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kligo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "spread." Buzz shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is unhurted. Buzz is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties.Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Toronto to learn whether they could be adapted to a smaller scheme suitable for his and Helen's land, and is satisfied it could be done. Feeling cold, he lights the fire and there is an explosion that wrecks the house, burns it and the plans and renders Link unconscious.
He is rescued from the blaze by an employee.Helen and Link ride to Rawhide for supplies and to obtain funds to carry out the plan. They meet Roper, who greets Helen and Link, and to shop with her. Link goes to see the Sheriff, who tells him Buzz Hamilton has been paroled, and must arrive on the incoming stage, but that he thinks Link has made a mistake in getting.Buzz Hamilton arrives back in Rawhide while Fleming and Helen are in the bank getting a loan for payment of wages for work on the farm. Roper Kligo and Jackpot Mell meet him and he goes into the saloon with them. By the time his sister and Link come from the bank, Buzz has had several drinks. Roper has distorted the facts concerning the dam proposal to Buzz, making it appear that Link was trying to ruin him. Buzz, inflamed with liquor and anger, tries to throttle Fleming, but is thrown to the floor. Then Helen appears and tells Fleming she has been robbed of the $500 they had obtained from the bank.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER X.

Fleming ran down the few steps from the saloon platform, crossed the board sidewalk, and grasped her pinto's bridle. "Robbed?" he echoed.
"You mean our eight hundred—it's gone?""Yes! As I rode past the timber line I saw a man behind me—I struggled with him," she panted.
"But he got our eight hundred dollars. On Link, what shall we do?"He slipped the pinto's reins over his arm. Out of the corners of his eyes he saw him hurrying from the saloon. "He wanted the money he —I had just drawn from the bank—"
"How much?" Kligo asked directly."I had my thirty-eight," she continued, pretending not to hear. "I tried to get it, but he came at me and grabbed my wrist. Pulled me out of my horse and he struggled. He hurt me, bending my arm behind my back. But I got a clue," she finished with grim-set lips. "I got this!"Helen held forth a leather wrist cuff such as was commonly worn by punchers. It was not new but dark with use, and its rivet design of a flour-de-lis could only be made out on close inspection. Ames accorded on a brief scrutiny and held the object aloft. "Anybody know whose this is?"Apparently no one did. The cuff resembled others worn by many a man in Boone County, yet was not exactly similar. At length Stephen turned on his heel, starting toward his office fifty yards down the street. "I'm going for a look at the place," he announced briefly. "Might be there's other ones. Sounds like that guy Benson, maybe the fellow Soak Turner," he put dynamite in Link's stone. Anyhow, I'll get that money back. Might take some time, but we'll grab the guy sooner or later!"There was some doubt of this in Link's mind, but he did not voice it as he touched Helen's arm. "Do you think we might start for the ranch now?""Oh! Yes, I think we had better.
Link," she added in a low tone, "could we get another loan from Otto Peeper?""Don't think so. We better get out of town before Otto hears about this.
There'd only be an argument and everybody'd find out about our business."Roper Kligo held her pinto while the girl remounted. "I'm shore sorry that hombre had the crust to lay a finger on yuh, Helen. By gosh, if I meet up with him I'll be lead fast an' talk 'tward yuh, maw!" He glanced a wary glance at Link.

who shifted weight in embarrassment.
At length he lifted his gaze to find hers still fixed upon him. Un-speakingly she proved it safe for the pool of her eyes, and a fondness he had scarcely dared hope even to exist. Of a sudden he felt again that the Silver Creek project must be made a success! So that later, when both spreads prospered from its waters, he could ask Helen the question he had toyed with inwardly while they looked at the wedding and engagement ring display in Ivy Lane's window.She was describing the holdup.
"He wore a bandana mask and walked out from behind a big boulder man, not very tall, but powerful

glanced a wary glance at Link.
"Oughtn't to've been allowed to goalone anyhow if yuh had money along," Roper growled.Fleming had dispatched Louise Green to his livery barn for a saddle horse, and this was now brought for Buzz Hamilton. He climbed astride somewhat stiffly but seemed pleased at the feel of a mount between his legs after so long a period, and they started at a trot out of Rawhide.For some time Link rode in silence, listening to the eager questions Helen put to her brother. But young Hamilton was moody from the liquor he had consumed in the Half Moon, and once the excitement of their return waned, he adopted an attitude of dogged sullenness.Presently Helen urged her mount closer to Link's. "Is this the surprise you had for me?" Is it what you spoke to Sheriff Stephen about?" He nodded. "I figured we'd come out of the bank about the time the stage rolled, so you'd get a real surprise. O' course," he said so that Buzz could not hear, "I didn't plan on him gettin' into the saloon."She cast a worried glance at her brother. He had turned his head away for a furtive sip from a pint bask of whiskey. Stowing it in his pocket, he forced a grin and watched her covertly to see if they had noticed.Helen's face wore a look of dis-pair. She rode close to her brother and laid a hand on his arm. "I-wish you wouldn't do that, Buzz," she said sadly. "You know, I'm so glad you are back, and we're going to have such a wonderful time, starting all over again. You must forget the past and think only of the future. Want it generous of Link to arrange to—to get your freedom.
Bless him!"He answered with a malevolent look. "Still puttin' his game over on yuh? Generous? Yeah—to himself!""Why, Buzz! Whatever do you mean?""I mean, he's roped yuh into his fool irrigation scheme—what folks call Fleming's Folly. He's afraid yuh might back out while there's still a chance to save our Triple H from bankruptcy. So he's a last play to keep yuh fooled he got me paroled.
That, and because he was afraid Link would get me a full period, the only thing really worth while. If I had my legal rights Fleming couldn't figure to keep the wool pulled over yure self. Paroled this way, I haven't got 'em."Helen stared from one man to the other, her pugnant oval face drawn in pain. "Oh, Buzz, don't say that!
I went into partnership with Link of my own free will. Why, that man is going to be the makings of a spread!"Again he fished the flat bottle from his pocket. "Makin' of the Star Lap, yuh mean?" Unrolling the flask, he raised it to his lips and drank. "Buzz! Don't drink that! You know you—that it was part of the cause of your alcoholism—I mean she stopped, anxiety and hurt fighting for dominance of her lovely face. "Buzz, please don't begin drinking and gamboling the instant you come home!"He swallowed some or the fiery liquor as if deliberately to flout her request. "Oh, Buzz, don't say that!
I went into partnership with Link
a spread!"He gasped. "What the hell yuh do!""Keep this up and your parole is going to end doggedly sudden. I planned to surprise your sister, make her happy for sight of you, and here you go back to company like Jackpot Mell and the others the minute you land in town. Watch your step!" Fleming warned sharply. "O-

Master Code In Alberta

Provides For Fixing Both Maximum
And Minimum Prices
Fixing of both maximum and minimum prices are provided in the general master code binding upon all classes of retail trade in Alberta, which has been approved by the provincial government and was released by Hon. E. C. Manning, minister of trade and industry. It is to take effect April 1 next.The minister stated that regulations under the code will provide for a licensing fee of not more than $2, with $1 for each additional license.
No additional license will be required in a community where there are no general stores, regardless of the nature of merchandise handled, the minister said. A general store license will cover all classifications of merchandise.

Renewing Relief Act

House Of Commons' Places Resolution On Order Paper Renewal of the relief act for another year is provided for in resolution placed on the order paper of the House of Commons by Hon. Norman Rogers, minister of labor.The relief act lapses at the end of each fiscal year and must be renewed in order that necessary grants to provinces and other assistance to meet unemployment can be continued.The minister said the legislation which he will introduce eliminates the "six month" feature which Liberals opposed so bitterly during the last parliament. The legislation, he said, will call for approval by both houses of appropriations made under the act.

Little Helps For This Week

In your patience possess ye your souls. Luke 21:19.What though thy way be dark, and earthWith ceaseless care doth vex till thineTo these no sweet strain sings: Still hide thy life above, and stillBelieve that God is love, fulfill Whatever he thine brings.The soul keeps company of itself when it is impatient. When it submits without a murmur it possesses itself in peace, and possesses God.
To be impatient is to desire what we have not, or not to desire what we have. Why make a calamity of it by being impatient? Peace does not dwell in outward things, but within the soul. We may preserve it in the midst of bitterest pain if our will remains firm and submissive.
Peace in this life springs from acquiescence even in disagreeable things, not in an exemption from bearing them. The chief pang of most trials is not the much the actual suffering itself as our own spirit of resistance to it.

Origin Of Old Term

"Bitter End" Has No Connection With Meaning Of WordWhen we speak of the bitter end, we often mean an end that is the reverse of sweet, but the term originated in a way that has nothing to do with taste or the usual meaning of bitter. Bitter is a pair of posts on the deck of a ship for fastening a rope or cable. Thus when the bitter end has been paid out there is no rope left to wind round the bits.A foreign inventor can obtain a patent in the United States provided a patent has not been granted to him for the same invention in some other country than the United States.
